

Ioannis Psarros is a research associate with the Intermodal Freight Transportation Institute (IFTI) at the University of Memphis. He received a Civil Engineering Diploma from the National Technical University of Athens-Greece and a Master's degree from Florida Atlantic University with concentration in transportation. His research interests include transportation planning, traffic simulation and emergency evacuation management.