

Nikolaos Deligiannis is a graduate research assistant with the Intermodal Freight and Transportation Institute at the University of Memphis. He is currently obtaining his MSc in Civil Engineering at the University of Memphis with a concentration on transportation. Prior to beginning his research with IFTI, he received his Bachelors of Science in Marine Engineering from the Macedonia Merchant Marine Academy, Greece and afterwards he received a Bachelor's and Masters of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece, focusing on HVAC and GSHP. Nikolaos is a native Greek and enjoys travelling, music, basketball, but also interested in politics, international and national affairs as well as history.

.