

ENGL 3511

TR 11:40-12:25

DR. J. ELLIOTT CASAL

Intro to Linguistics

This course is an introduction to Linguistics, the scientific study of language. Students will develop familiarity with and skills related to the study of structure and function in language, how languages change over time, and how meanings and identities are constructed linguistically. Students will work with naturally occurring language data regularly, and special attention will be paid to the applications of linguistics to real world contexts and interdisciplinary activities.

No background in linguistics is required!

